NYC-area Summer Internships for High School & College Students

Wave Hill's Forest Project Summer Collaborative

Deadlines and other useful information: Applications are due March 23. Roughly 125 students vie for the program's 25 slots. Interns earn $8 an hour. Wave Hill also runs a new 14-month Woodland Ecology Research Mentorship program for low-income or minority New York City high school students.

Eligibility: Students currently enrolled in 10th, 11th or 12th grades with strong academic records.

The New-York Historical Society's Student Historian High School Internship Program

Deadlines and other useful information: Applications are due April 23. The program is highly competitive, with a 10 to 15 percent acceptance rate for its roughly 30 slots. The internship is unpaid, except for New York City high school students eligible for free or reduced lunch, who earn the minimum wage of $8 an hour.

Eligibility: The internship is open to students from the tri-state area currently enrolled in grades 10 through 12.

Billion Oyster Project's Educator Interns for Camp RESTORE

Deadlines and other useful information: The admission deadline for the internship, which is in its first year, is rolling. Applicants should send letters of interest and resumes to restore@newyorkharbor.org.

The internship is unpaid.

Eligibility: The ideal candidate is a high school graduate who is 18 or older and has an interest in the field. High school students may also be considered.

New York Botanical Garden's Science Internship Program

Deadlines and other useful information: There is no formal application deadline for this unpaid internship, but scientists like to line up their summer interns as far as possible in advance.

Eligibility: College and high school students with a demonstrated interest in science.

The Department of Youth and Community Development's Summer Youth Employment Program

Deadlines and other useful information: Applications available from March 3. For updates, check www.nyc.gov/dycd or follow DYCD on Twitter or Facebook. Participants are paid $8 an hour for 20 to 25 hours a week.

Eligibility: The program is open to all New York City residents between the ages of 14 and 24. More than 135,000 young people applied for last summer's roughly 36,000 jobs, which were awarded through a lottery and application process.